Fundamentals of Campus Emergency Planning/Developing a Campus Threat Assessment Team (FCEP)

This course will provide attendees with an understanding of key aspects of emergency plan development and testing. This will include learning how to identify (and differentiate between) threats and hazards, key components of an emergency plan, continuity of operations planning, common emergency management terminology, exercise planning and execution, and other considerations for universities and colleges. There will also be a panel discussion where attendees can ask questions of several campus public safety professionals in order to find out how issues and problems are handled at a variety of institutions. While this course covers the basics to help institutions get started, it is also a good review for those experienced in emergency planning.

First Responder Training Program (F RTP)

This 3-day program covers the topics most applicable to first responders who include: law enforcement, firefighters and emergency medical services personnel. These emergency response professionals must be trained and equipped for virtually any situation, including criminal acts, natural disasters and other large-scale emergencies. A system of command will be needed to achieve a coordinated and effective incident response. Further, the psychological impact upon first responders needs to be considered following any critical incident. The F RTP will provide training, guidelines, and resources to address these, as well as other important issues.
